Overview

The DataScientia Symposium 2026, to be hosted in South Africa at Durban University of Technology (DUT), will take place from 22 to 24 July 2026, followed by a dedicated day of social and networking activities on 25 July. The event marks a significant step in advancing a global dialogue on Diversity-aware Sovereign AI; an approach to artificial intelligence that respects cultural diversity, local knowledge, and data autonomy across regions and communities.

Bringing together leading researchers, policymakers, industry experts, and international organizations, the meeting is designed as a multi-day collaborative platform combining scientific exchange, policy dialogue, and strategic co-creation. Participants will engage in a dynamic program of talks, workshops, and discussions aimed at shaping the future of inclusive and culturally aware AI systems.

The event will open with an Opening Ceremony at DUT, setting the stage for three thematic workshops:

- Day 1 (22 July) – Diversity-aware AI

The goal of this workshop is to provide a high level overview, via survey talks, and case studies, of the state of the art in Diversity-aware AI, problems and solutions, across the main diverse application domains and case studies across diverse cultures and languages. Talks will present cutting-edge research and interdisciplinary approaches to building AI systems.

- Day 2 (23 July) – Diversity-aware sovereign AI for Africa (Policy & Regional Perspective)

Building on the scientific foundations of the first workshop, this workshop will shift toward policy, governance, and regional implementation, with a particular focus on South Africa and the broader African landscape. Speakers will include representatives from governments, academia, and international bodies, offering insights into current initiatives and strategic priorities. The session will conclude with a multi-stakeholder panel discussion addressing pathways toward African leadership in Diversity-aware sovereign AI.

- Day 3 (24 July) – The DataScientia Initiative (Collaboration & Action)

The final day is dedicated to the DataScientia Initiative, focusing on its core pillars: community building towards shared information, education, research, and innovation. The participants will actively contribute to shaping ongoing and future activities, fostering partnerships, and defining concrete actions for collaboration at both regional and global levels. The session will conclude with a panel Q/A section where the participants will discuss difficulties, open problems, and concrete ways of how to proceed.

- Day 4 (25 July) – Social Program

The meeting will conclude on 25 July with a social program, offering participants the opportunity to experience the richness of beautiful South Africa while strengthening informal connections and fostering long-term international collaboration.

A Manifesto for Diversity-aware Sovereign AI for Africa

A central outcome of the event will be the co-creation of a Manifesto on diversity-aware sovereign AI, developed through structured contributions from leading researchers, senior policymakers, institutional representatives, and international partners. The manifesto will be conceived not as a declarative statement, but as an evidence-informed and action-oriented framework, grounded in the discussions and outputs of the meeting.

Its development will draw on the three core pillars of the program: the scientific evidence presented during Day 1, capturing the state of the art and key research challenges; the policy and governance perspectives of Day 2, reflecting regulatory approaches, public sector priorities, and international cooperation efforts, including contributions from institutions such as the European Commission and African governmental bodies; and the implementation-oriented work of Day 3, translating these insights into operational priorities across capacity building, data governance, education, and innovation.

To ensure continuity and impact beyond the event, the manifesto will be accompanied by concrete follow-up mechanisms, including the establishment of thematic working groups, the identification of pilot initiatives and joint projects, and its integration into the ongoing activities of the DataScientia Initiative across research, education, and innovation. In this sense, the meeting is designed not only as a forum for exchange, but as a mechanism for coordination and alignment, inviting participants to actively contribute to shaping both the conceptual foundations and the practical trajectory of Sovereign AI in Africa and globally.

Workshop on Diversity Aware AI - Purpose and Structure

The goal of the first day is to bring together speakers from different communities (e.g., AI, linguistics, anthropology, design), as well as participants with diverse backgrounds, even if from the same research area, e.g., AI. The goal for each speaker will be to provide a broad overview of the state of the art while also placing our work in a wider context. The key objective is to facilitate the development of an interdisciplinary and multidisciplinary understanding of the issues being discussed. There is a need to present a holistic and well-integrated perspective on your work.

As from the title of the event, “Diversity-aware Sovereign AI,” and its location in Durban, South Africa, the speakers have been selected, to the best of our ability, to cover the various issues connected to these themes. The first day is primarily focused on the scientific aspects. However, it has also been designed to lay the groundwork for the discussions that will take place on the second and third days, whose main focus will be on how to develop sovereign, diversity-aware AI in Africa. This is also linked to the plan of producing, as a possible outcome of this three-day event, a manifesto paper on the development of “diversity-aware sovereign AI in Africa”.

DAY 2 – 23.07.2026 | OPEN TO PUBLIC

Workshop on Diversity-aware Sovereign AI for Africa - Purpose and Structure

The goal of the second day will be to provide a broad overview of the different dimensions of the subject matter of Diversity-Aware Sovereign for Africa (DASAI4Africa), while also placing our views in a wider context. The key objective is to facilitate the development of an interdisciplinary and multidisciplinary understanding of the issues around DASAI4Africa being discussed. The audience (now there are more than one hundred people signed up) will include people from different disciplines, as well as participants with more general backgrounds. Therefore, there is a need to present a holistic and well-integrated perspective on the DASAI4Africa subject matter.

The second point relates to what lies behind the DataScientia event theme, "Diversity-aware Sovereign AI (DASAI)." The DASAI scientific foundation and global perspective is the primary focus of Day 1 of the event, while Day 2 zooms in on the African context of DASAI. The Day 2 programme is deliberately designed to logically build upon the Day 1 programme by critically examining the contextual issues, challenges, and opportunities of developing DASAI in the African context. In addition to the policy and dialogue sessions, the programme includes a practical tutorial that complements these discussions by providing participants with hands-on exposure to methodologies, tools, and collaborative approaches for developing diversity-aware AI resources. Together, these activities are intended to bridge conceptual discussions with practical implementation, fostering collaboration and capacity building to support the long-term goals of the DataScientia Initiative. The Day 2 programme has also been designed as a precursor to the practical, solution-focused DataScientia Initiative, scheduled for Day 3. It is also linked to the plan of producing, as a possible outcome of this three-day event, a manifesto paper on the development of "Diversity-aware Sovereign AI in Africa."

The 3rd point relates to a knowledge transfer capacity-building Tutorial session on Lexical semantics for diversity-aware sovereign AI. The Tutorial targets academic staff and students from language studies and Computing. The Tutorial session is motivated by the principle of Science and Technology development and transfer which states that Technology transfer cannot take root in the recipient context unless the science behind the technology is transferred with it.

	12:00	Lunch Break		1 hour	ALL

The afternoon program will feature two concurrent activities: a Dialogue Forum and a Tutorial Session. The specific activities within each session are detailed below.

It is a well acknowledged development studies principle that Technology Transfer can take root in the recipient context only if the underlying Science is transferred with it. Therefore, the primary mission in this Tutorial session (session 1) on Lexical Semantics for Diversity-Aware Sovereign AI is knowledge transfer cum capacity building. It will entail sessions of lectures and hands-on practical exercises, as detailed in the table below.

The Session 2 is a knowledge-generation session, which is about the participants engaging the main theme of the Symposium– Diversity-Aware Sovereign AI (DASAI)– with an African context focus. Hence, it is titled Diversity-Aware Sovereign AI for Africa (DASAI4Africa). The session will entail a number of Talks and a DASAI4Africa Dialogue Forum. The DASAI4Africa Dialogue Forum will entail a plenary session of unpacking the DASAI4Africa idea into 8 dimensions, which provides the basis for splitting the participants into 8 Discussion Groups. Following this is a break-away session for each Discussion Group to engage the assigned DASAI4Africa dimension. The session will end with a plenary session of DG reporting and a round-up presentation.

DAY 3 – 24.07.2026 | INVITATIONS ONLY*Workshop on The DataScientia Initiative - Purpose and Structure

The third day is dedicated to the future development of the DataScientia Initiative and serves as a collaborative working session for current and prospective partners. Building on the scientific foundations of Day 1 and the policy discussions of Day 2, the focus shifts towards concrete actions, partnerships, and long-term sustainability. The programme will present the progress achieved over the past year across DataScientia's core areas of activity—Knowledge Commons, Education, Research, and Innovation—as well as the collaboration models and infrastructure that support them.

The day will provide an opportunity to discuss how new partners can join and contribute to the initiative, explore fundraising and sustainability strategies, and strengthen collaboration across institutions and regions. Through presentations, discussions, and a concluding panel, participants will help define priorities for the coming years and identify practical pathways for advancing Diversity-aware Sovereign AI in Africa and beyond. The overall objective is to transform the ideas and relationships developed throughout the symposium into a coordinated and impactful programme of action.

DASAI Dialogue Forum Discussion Rubrics
Idea to discuss	Diversity-Aware Sovereign AI for Africa (DASAI4Africa): Diversity-Aware Sovereign AI (DASAI) integrates a continent/region/nation's data independence with ethical inclusivity, with core pillars which define the framework for developing inclusive, self-determined AI science & technology, being centred on ensuring local control over digital resources while actively mitigating algorithmic bias and cultural erasure in marginalized regions. It demands infrastructures, models, and practices that are locally governable, ecologically accountable, and epistemically just, with pluriverse and 2-Eyed Seeing principles underpinning.
Modalities	Participants divided into groups based on the sub-ideas to discuss, using the 5-step sub-issues Framework, with assigned Group Facilitator and Repertoire

Group Discussion Framework
Discussion Sub-Issues	Guidelines
Step 1. Who we are	Participants self-introduction Participants will display the following sentence: “My name is (x) and during the day I (x) and I like to (x).” You will also be asked to draw yourself and your superpower. Once you have written down your name, place the name card in front of you with the text facing your fellow participants. After that, the Facilitator will invite participants to do a round of sharing.
Step 2. What we care about	Each participant answers the question: Why is the idea important to my region / country / institution / me? Each participant has joined the Dialogue Forum for a specific reason and brings a unique point of view. In step 2, participants are asked to share their motivation for joining by answering “why the DASAI idea is important to them” or “what they care about”. All participants are asked to share why the DASAI idea is important to them or what they care about. By using key words and short sentences, participants individually write on the “what I care about” activity card and place it on step two on the canvas. The Facilitator will then ask participants to share.
Step 3. Obstacles and Opportunities	From their unique perspectives each participant to answer: What obstacles to overcome- barrier, problem, or challenge? What opportunities does the DASAI idea offer? solution or improvement to the idea? Participants are asked to write the obstacles the DASAI idea faces and opportunities it presents on sticky notes. One obstacle or opportunity per sticky note. After this, participants are invited to share and then place on the canvas. If two or more participants have similar ideas, group them together.
Step 4. Influencing perspectives and factors	Participants are asked to consider how external factors impact their idea. Using the 4R's of Roles & relationships, Resources, Results and Rules, participants are given an opportunity to reflect individually before the Facilitator facilitates an open dialogue. While the participants are discussing, the Facilitator and Repertoires, take note of the key discussion points. The Facilitator then shares the key points of the discussion and if everyone agrees, each point is noted What different perspectives and external factors in your regional/national/institutional context can influence the DASAI idea and its outcomes such as: ● Roles & Relationships: who affects and who is affected by the idea? ● Resources: what resources are needed for your idea? Think budget, personnel, time, etc. ● Rules: are there laws, policies, guidelines, protocols or norms that apply to your idea? ● Results: what are the desired outcomes of this idea?

Step 5. Let's Act	What are the concrete and measurable actions that can be carried forward after the DASAI Dialogue? • Identify which general actions need to be taken to implement the idea, from the perspective of relevant institutional stakeholders. • Identify individual actions that each participant can take after the DASAI Dialogue. E.g. By October 2026 I will facilitate an intra-institutional DASAI Dialogue Forum, By June 2027, I will facilitate my institution joining the DataScientia initiative on DASAI; By October 2027, I will facilitate a National DASAI Dialogue Forum, etc
